Notice of consumer rights under the FCRA:

A Summary of Your Rights Under the Fair Credit Reporting Act

The federal Fair Credit Reporting Act (FCRA) is designed to promote accuracy, fairness, and privacy of information in the files of every "consumer reporting agency" (CRA). Most CRAs are credit bureaus that gather and sell information about you -- such as if you pay your bills on time or have filed bankruptcy -- to creditors, employers, landlords, and other businesses. You can find the complete text of the FCRA, 15 U.S.C. 1681-1681u, at the Federal Trade Commission's web site (<http://www.ftc.gov>). The FCRA gives you specific rights, as outlined below. You may have additional rights under state law.

You may contact a state or local consumer protection agency or a state attorney general to learn those rights.

You must be told if information in your file has been used against you. Anyone who uses information from a CRA to take action against you -- such as denying an application for credit, insurance, or employment -- must tell you, and give you the name, address, and phone number of the CRA that provided the consumer report.

You can find out what is in your file. At your request, a CRA must give you the information in your file, and a list of everyone who has requested it recently. There is no charge for the report if a person has taken action against you because of information supplied by the CRA, if you request the report within 60 days of receiving notice of the action. You also are entitled to one free report every twelve months upon request if you certify that (1) you are unemployed and plan to seek employment within 60 days, (2) you are on welfare, or (3) your report is inaccurate due to fraud. Otherwise, a CRA may charge you up to eight dollars.

You can dispute inaccurate information with the CRA. If you tell a CRA that your file contains inaccurate information, the CRA must investigate the items (usually within 30 days) by presenting to its information source all relevant evidence you submit, unless your dispute is frivolous. The source must review your evidence and report its findings to the CRA. (The source also must advise national CRAs -- to which it has provided the data -- of any error.) The CRA must give you a written report of the investigation, and a copy of your report if the investigation results in any change. If the CRA's investigation does not resolve the dispute, you may add a brief statement to your file. The CRA must normally include a summary of your statement in future reports. If an item is deleted or a dispute statement is filed, you may ask that anyone who has recently received your report be notified of the change.

Inaccurate information must be corrected or deleted. A CRA must remove or correct inaccurate or unverified information from its files, usually within 30 days after you dispute it. However, the CRA is not required to remove accurate data from your file unless it is outdated (as described below) or cannot be verified. If your dispute results in any change to your report, the CRA cannot reinsert into your file a disputed item unless the information source verifies its accuracy and completeness. In addition, the CRA must give you a written notice telling you it has reinserted the item. The notice must include the name, address and phone number of the information source.

You can dispute inaccurate items with the source of the information. If you tell anyone -- such as a creditor who reports to a CRA -- that you dispute an item, they may not then report the information to a CRA without including a notice of your dispute. In addition, once you've notified the source of the error in writing, it may not continue to report the information if it is, in fact, an error.

Outdated information may not be reported. In most cases, a CRA may not report negative information that is more than seven years old; ten years for bankruptcies.

Access to your file is limited. A CRA may provide information about you only to people with a need recognized by the FCRA -- usually to consider an application with a creditor, insurer, employer, landlord, or other business.

Your consent is required for reports that are provided to employers, or reports that contain medical information. A CRA may not give out information about you to your employer, or prospective employer, without your written consent. A CRA may not report medical information about you to creditors, insurers, or employers without your permission.

You may choose to exclude your name from CRA lists for unsolicited credit and insurance offers. Creditors and insurers may use file information as the basis for sending you unsolicited offers of credit or insurance. Such offers must include a toll-free phone number for you to call if you want your name and address removed from future lists. If you call, you must be kept off the lists for two years. If you request, complete, and return the CRA form provided for this purpose, you must be taken off the lists indefinitely.

_____ Initials of Authorized Signer

You may seek damages from violators. If a CRA, a user or (in some cases) a provider of CRA data, violates the FCRA, you may sue them in state or federal court.

The FCRA gives several different federal agencies authority to enforce the FCRA:

Business Site Verification

The unfortunate increases today in criminal activity of individual's private information, credit fraud and identity theft have lifted everyone's awareness to do everything possible to protect ourselves against these crimes. Our industry in general has become more and more regulated over the years to counteract against these crimes to protect people's private information. The Business Site Verification is an industry requirement to combat these issues. Every legitimate screening company conducts a business site verification before a new account is opened. The purpose is to provide to BRI the necessary proof to show compliance with federal, state and local government laws. Furthermore it shows you are taking the proper safeguards needed to ensure the personal private information you are receiving is being protected and secured from persons who are not authorized to access this information.

PLEASE NOTE:

Business Site Verifications are performed by a third party company. You may be contacted in the future by an authorized third party company to conduct the Business Site Verification for your location. On average the time between scheduling a date/time to the actual visit is about 3-4 business days however the visit itself is usually on 20-30 minutes. The following is a short list of some (not all) items checked during the site visit in relation to your business and background screening.

Companies/Commercial Address Inspection

- ❖ Are credit and other consumer files are kept in lockable filing cabinets? This should included rental applications, leases and employment applications.
- ❖ Is there a shredder or other machine present to destroy applications, leases or consumer reports that are no longer needed? Is there a policy in place to ensure this is done?
- ❖ Are computer screens locked (password protected) after a certain "idle" time period?
- ❖ Does the business office or area, where the credit files, computers, filing cabinets etc. are located, have a locked door?
- ❖ Are fax machines and computers in a secure location away from the public or in a location were there is a serious risk of sensitive information being accessed by unauthorized personnel?
- ❖ Are there security measures in place to restrict access to the work area from unauthorized persons?
- ❖ Is the business actually located at the address listed on the BRI membership application? If not, why?
- ❖ Is there a permanent sign identifying the business and does the name match what is listed on the BRI membership application? If not, why?
- ❖ Is the company located in a commercial building (as opposed to a private residence or apartment)?
- ❖ Is the office space shared with another business? If so, what business and in what relation are they to your business?
- ❖ Is there a business license displayed?
